TO: SAC, NEW ORLEANS (92-517)
FROM: SAC, NEW YORK (92-3063)
SUBJECT: JOSEPH N. GALLO aka
Giuseppe Gallo (TN)
AR

Reference New Orleans letter to New York, dated 3/23/64.

Enclosed for New Orleans, are two photographs of the subject, taken in 1969.

For information of New Orleans, captioned subject, attendee at La Stella meeting in 1966, recently became "Consigliori" of the GAMBINO family of LCN. Background data contained in LCN index card.

Subject spends much of his time outside of New York City, in a traveling status. Investigation has disclosed that subject spends time in Philadelphia, Baltimore, Miami, Puerto Rico and New Orleans. Subject has indicated to informant a fairly comprehensive knowledge of the New Orleans area, and has, in the past several years, attended the opening week of the Fairgrounds Race Track, likewise, subject visits New Orleans several times during the Fairground meet.

New York, has not developed much information relative to the subject prior to 1954, other than the fact that subject spent a little of his time from 1931 to 1952 in the New Orleans area, where he reportedly operated a gambling house. New York informant indicated that during that time, GALLO operated a telephone somewhere near the Fairgrounds Track, relaying bets to New York on fixed horse races.

GALLO is mildly surveillance conscious but does not normally start his routine dry cleaning until he gets in the general vicinity of his destination. He often parks several blocks away from his destination and will take several minutes to exit and leave his automobile.

GALLO is currently driving a 1972 black Cadillac Coupe De Ville bearing N. J. license tags [REDACTED] registered to [REDACTED], for GALLO, [REDACTED]

Surveillances have been very productive in that the following has been learned about GALLO:

1. Subject pays $239 per month for his rent at 31-85 Crescent St., Astoria, N. Y. where he lives with his wife alone. GALLO's car is usually parked here in the morning.

2. GALLO spent a five day weekend at the Wave Crest Motel, Montauk, N. Y. from 8/9 to 8/13/72 using the name JOSEPH BLAKE 22-46 80th Street, Brooklyn, N.Y. paying cash in advance. Subject had visitors who arrived in four cars, all N. J. tags on 8/12/72. Newark is handling.

3. GALLO observed going to a meeting at the 22-30 Ocean Parkway, Brooklyn residence of CARLO GAMBINO.

Also present at the meeting were [redacted] and NEIL DELLACROCE. The day prior to this meeting GALLO drove from his Astoria residence with an unsub to a meeting with NEIL DELLACROCE and two other white males at the Oriental Star Restaurant, Ave. M and Ocean Avenue, Brooklyn. GALLO used evasive tactics just prior to parking for this meeting.

4. On 8/17/72 GALLO was taken to the Pennsylvania Building at 220 W. 34th St., NYC and after a two hour meeting exited the bldg. and was observed with an unsub walking to the Meyer Bros. Garage on W. 34th Street between 8th and 9th Aves. where GALLO traditionally parks his car. GALLO drove the unsub to Park Ave. and E. 34th Street and continued on to E. 12th St., NYC. GALLO parked in front of the Columbia Civic Club, 347 E. 12th St. but did not enter. Rather he walked down to Ave. A and stopped for coffee in front of the "201" luncheonette, 201 Ave. A with two other white males. Photographs were taken. ✓

GALLO was picked up at the "201" by another unsub driving a car registered to [redacted]. From here GALLO was taken to a meeting with two white males at the Crosby Luncheonette, Crosby and Prince Sts. NYC. Later GALLO left the Crosby Luncheonette and walked to the Ravenite Social Club on Mulberry St. where he had a lengthy sidewalk meeting with NEIL DELLACROCE. GALLO was later picked up and driven back to his car parked on E. 12th St. which he entered and he returned to his Astoria home.

5. GALLO has been observed on several occasions at a Social Club at 23-53 Vernon Blvd., Astoria, N. Y. during the early and late afternoons.

6. The most significant discovery has been the location of GALLO's "safe pad" in Bay Terrace, Queens, N. Y. GALLO was observed driving to the Towers at the Water's Edge 18th Ave. and 215th St. off Bell Blvd., Bay Terrace, Queens, N. Y. Investigation revealed that GALLO owns apartment 2N in building #1 of this hi-rise complex in the name JOSEPH [redacted]. GALLO pays, by check, almost $500 per month for the apartment and the parking space #230 in the garage under the apartment complex. (It should be noted that with this apartment and his Astoria apartment he pays over $8700 yearly in rent alone. In 1971 he claimed $15,000 gross income!) Extreme caution should be observed in order not to expose FBI knowledge of this apartment, even to the extent of pulling off a surveillance if necessary.

b7C

[redacted] tel #
[redacted] and [redacted], same telephone # have been very co-operative being led to believe this is a Soviet matter. They do not know [redacted] true identity and the name GALLO should not be used in talking to them.
[redacted] name is [redacted]. They may be called to ascertain if GALLO's automobile is in parking spot #230, but again DO NOT USE THE NAME GALLO or make any mention of the true purpose of the surveillance. [redacted] can be reached at telephone [redacted] which [redacted] [redacted] GALLO's apartment! [redacted] and [redacted] should only be called if necessary and physical observation of parking spot #230 should be made if at all possible.

b6
b7C

The [redacted] living with GALLO uses the black Cadillac often during the afternoon when GALLO is with her at Bay Terrace. Alone she travels to the local OTB office and the Bay Terrace Shopping Center. This

[redacted]
She is most likely identical to [redacted] the black Cadillac previously mentioned. Photos have been taken of her and are available.

Re memo of SA [REDACTED], 8/21/72.

Since rememo, subject has shown increased surveillance consciousness, possibly due to publicity of NYCPD re "cracking down" and harassing hoodlums.

In view of the above GALLO has resorted to side-walk meetings in the late night hours between [REDACTED] in front of his social club, the HOLY MARY of the BRIDGE Social Club, 33-53 Vernon Blvd., Astoria, N. Y. Sources have previously advised that GALLO has been doing this for years due to his fear of being bugged.

Surveillances have indicated GALLO is using, on occasion, a 1969 Black Buick, NY lic. [REDACTED] registered to [REDACTED]

b6
b7C
b7E

[REDACTED]. On several occasions GALLO has met with [REDACTED] in front of the above social club.

Surveillances have also shown GALLO, who has been ejected from Saratoga and Aqueduct Race Tracks, [REDACTED], aka [REDACTED], make his bets either at the OTB Office on Bell Blvd. and 42nd Ave., Bayside, N. Y. or at Belmont RaceTrack.

Should agents surveille [REDACTED] to OTB or a NY racetrack they are to attempt to determine which horses [REDACTED] betting and the dollar value of the bets. This is not only for IRS purposes but to determine if GALLO may be involved in any race fixing. There have been indications this may be the case.

Agents are reminded to avoid being burnt at the GALLO Bayside apartment and should from now on avoid any contact with the apartment manager.

Due to GALLO'S late hours the night shift on surveillances is now from [redacted]. Agents assigned to the night shift should insure they are in a position to relieve the day shift on time since there is now only a one hour overlap of shifts.

Any changes in the schedule must be handled by agents concerned and case agent must be notified of any changes.

b6

Henceforth on any surveillance where subject or [redacted] is observed each agent must submit his own surveillance log since there is a good possibility testimony will be required and the original log will be the agents notes that may be required at a trial. This is especially important if subject perjures himself in front of a grand jury.

In addition to places frequented by subject already noted in the past two memos subject has been taken to the following:

80th Street and Roosevelt Ave.
Jackson Heights, N. Y.

FROM :SA [REDACTED]

SUBJECT:JOSEPH N. GALLO, aka

Re memo of SA [REDACTED] dated 9/5/72.

Since rememo, a noticeable change has occurred in the activity of the subject, in that he seems to be involved in a good deal more meetings than he had in the past. It also appears that he has at least temporarily changed his meeting place from his club located at 33-53 Vernon Blvd., Astoria, N. Y. to the intersection of 21 Street and Broadway, Astoria. He can be seen especially on Tuesday and Friday evenings between 9:00 pm. and 12:00 midnight meeting with various individuals either on the street near the Bel Aire Diner at the above intersection or inside the diner itself. GALLO also may walk as far away as the public school located on 21 Street between 31st Drive and 31st Road for his "sidewalk meetings".

GALLO'S "sidewalk meetings", done to avoid "bugs", can be very helpful in that the persons he confers with can be much more readily identified. Because of this surveillance agents should make every effort to identify, through license plates, persons that GALLO meets. In the event GALLO meets in a restaurant and leaves his associates, one agent should be left behind to observe the automobile the associates enter. Any license plates taken down should be checked with Secretary, Desk 53 before calling DMV since she keeps a file of all cars observed in the GALLO and the CARLO GAMBINO surveillances.

Another practice that must be observed to avoid problems of testimony in front of the FGJ is that agents must submit separate logs of precisely what they individually observed. Times must be co-ordinated. Of course where no activity is noted only one log signed by all the agents will suffice.

In the event any license plates are taken down during the log, the ~~wherrärth~~ vehicle should be fully noted on a list attached to the log. This is done for indexing purposes.

Hence the owner's address and date of birth are essential.

Agents should also continue to be cautious to avoid compromising our knowledge of GALLO'S Bayside apartment.

Thus far surveillances have been more productive than expected and agents have had remarkable success in staying with GALLO oftentimes despite his "drycleaning" tactics. It should be noted that in the past nine weeks this "consigliere" has been surveilled almost 80% of his waking hours, which in itself is remarkable.

How Cops Keep Tabs on a Mobster

as a customer. But after 15 minutes or so the elderly druggist guessed what we were up to.

"You've got someone under surveillance," he said, "so I'll just mind my business."

"What makes you say that?" the sergeant asked.

"Oh, I've had this store used for surveillance before," he answered.

About 10 minutes later a short, curly haired man in workman's clothes emerged from the luncheonette and entered the drug store. Was it the counselor sending an acquaintance to find out who the two men standing in the drug store were? Were we uncovered after tailing him for less than a block?

The sergeant doesn't know the answer to those questions. All he has are his suspicions and in view of what happened later he thinks the little man with curly hair came into the drug store innocently enough.

He discussed cars with the drug store owner, attempted to tout him on a Lincoln dealer who was a personal friend of his, and then left.

At about noon the counselor left the luncheonette, walked directly past the drug store without giving it a glance and headed back to his apartment. The sergeant followed discreetly after telling me to make my way back to where our vehicle was parked. I chose a round about route, circling the block and found the plainclothesman who somehow seemed aware of everything that had happened—sitting behind the wheel.

At 12:10—the sergeant had just returned to the car after ducking into an apartment building to allay the suspicions of a woman who was "eyeballing" him—the counselor, accompanied by another man, walked briskly out of his building. They disappeared down a side street and before we had a chance to follow, a gold-colored Buick Riviera wheeled into our block.

"That's them," the plainclothesman said excitedly.

"Let's go," the sergeant ordered. "But don't get too close. I don't think he has a car made."

As we trailed the car through Queens, heading toward the Queens Midtown Tunnel, the sergeant wrote down the New York license plate of the Buick. He asked the plainclothesman if he had gotten a good look at the second man.

"He's male, white, about 45, stocky, maybe 5-9, with black hair and wearing sunglasses," the plainclothesman answered.

Tailing a car in the city is difficult. While the traffic acts as a cover, it is easy to become hopelessly ensnared in it and lose your prey. By expert driving the plainclothesman was able to stay about two or three vehicles back of the Riviera.

At the tunnel entrance the counselor and his companion suddenly disappeared when we got stuck behind a truck. The plainclothesman pulled into an outside lane and speeded up.

"Take it easy. I've got them spotted," the sergeant said. "They're over on the right in front of that truck." We slid behind the truck and followed. Once out of the tunnel the Riviera headed downtown on Second Av. At E. 13th St. it turned right heading west.

"I would say he doesn't know we're on him," the sergeant said. "He isn't taking evasive action. If he knew we were on him he'd be making all sorts of turns. They don't like to be followed."

At W. 13th St. and Seventh Av. the Riviera made a left. It traveled one block and then turned east on 12th St. Halfway down the block the Riviera pulled on to the side and the counselor hopped out, walking briskly into St. Vincent's Hospital.

The sergeant followed, telling me to wait with the plainclothesman and keep an eye on another hospital entrance. It was exactly 12:30.

We watched the entrance for about ten minutes and observed nothing unusual. In about ten minutes the sergeant joined us and said in a mournful tone: "I lost him."

He said that when he entered the hospital he spotted the counselor in a phone booth. He entered another phone booth and made believe he was making a call.

"He gave me the eyeball in the booth," he said, "then hung up. Then he moved out and went around a corner. I gave him a five second lead and went after him. It was like poof. He just disappeared."

Did the counselor go to the hospital to visit a sick bus and then get a check with receptionist re-visit hours of till 2 p.m. Pa-

How the Cops Tail Mobsters

The Special Operations Section of the Police Dept. was formed in response to public outrage at the mistaken identity slaying of two businessmen last August in the Neapolitan Noodle an Upper East Side restaurant. Since then, teams of detectives have been following reputed top echelon members of New York's five Mafia families to amass intelligence on their activities and openly harass them. Post reporter Leonard Katz accompanied a sergeant and plainclothes patrolman of the Special Operations Section as they tailed the alleged counselor to the Carlo Gambino family.

By LEONARD KATZ

The stakeout begins at 8:15 a.m. on a quiet residential street in Astoria, Queens. Both sides of the street, of the ethnically mixed lower middle-class neighborhood are lined with modest two-family homes, almost all having white stone facades and looking about 50 years old.

The symmetry of the skyline, however, is broken by two rather new six-story apartment buildings made of red brick. The Gambino family consigliere, a man about 60 with a full head of distinguished-looking gray-white hair, lives inconspicuously with his wife in one of them.

We parked about 200 yards from the building's entrance. Field glasses made it possible for the officers to closely observe everyone going in and out.

The plan was to try to tail the Mafia adviser unobserved in the hope that he would lead the cops to unknown associates or reveal some legitimate looking business enterprise he had an interest in. From previous observations the Special Operations Section already has a rather large file of business associates and interests of the counselor.

In the event the officers are discovered by the person they are tailing they are under orders to follow closely, nevertheless.

Aside from intelligence we are out to create an atmosphere of apprehension for them by intensive surveillance of their activities. It's the way Capt. Albert J. Drake, head of Special Operations, puts it.

From past observations the officers know their subject usually leaves home between 8:30 and 11:30 a.m. While the plainclothesman kept his field glasses trained, the sergeant checked the building, garage and the immediate neighborhood for the counselor's black Cadillac.

About 9 a.m. he returned to the stakeout car. The Caddy was nowhere in sight.

"Maybe he's going to use the subway into Manhattan this morning?" the plainclothesman speculated.

"If he does I'll follow and you alert your units near his places of activity," the sergeant ordered. "You follow the train and I'll meet you in town."

By 9:30 the sergeant began to get a little impatient. "Go put your car to the door and see if you can hear any signs of life," the plainclothesman was told.

He reported back 15 minutes later and said he could hear a radio playing but no voices.

At about 10:15 the sergeant decided on more drastic action. He went into the building and rang the counselor's bell. He returned by a delivery route in a little while laughing and saying: "If I don't sleep, he doesn't sleep."

In the meantime, a blue Caddy convertible with a New Jersey license plate parked outside the building.

Both officers immediately became alert, explaining the difficulty of locating and tailing their vehicles with New Jersey plates because they are hard to trace.

Time passed slowly and there were several false alarms. "That's not him," the patrolman said each time. "You can't miss him. He has this distinctive slow walk and he never wears a hat."

At 11:25 the counselor, wearing a white raincoat and hatless, walked out and headed toward Broadway. "I think he's going for the subway," the sergeant said. "I'll tail him."

We followed, about 100 yards behind. "Don't look at him. Just walk with me and try to act natural," the sergeant told me.

But instead of walking towards the subway the counselor went into a luncheonette on the corner. We ducked into a drug store which afforded us a clear view.

The sergeant bought some gum and then some unwaxed dental floss, trying to appear

The Gallup Poll says an unusually high 32 per cent of enrolled Democrats in a recent sampling expect to defect from their party and vote for President Nixon.

The anticipated crossover rate among Democrats represents a 20-year peak and contrasts with an average figure of 2 per cent in past five presidential elections, the poll reported.

It was based on a survey of 2,630 registered voters Sept. 29 to Oct. 9.

On 9/26/72 JOSEPH N. GALLO, consigliere of the GAMBINO LCN family was observed entering the Holy Mary of the Bridge, Social Club, 33-53 Vernon Blvd, Astoria, N.Y. Shortly thereafter, at [REDACTED] two white males drove up to this club in a 1972 gold Plymouth, NY lic. 6D 1918 registered to JEAN MC GILLICUDDY, 118 Lake Dr, Newburgh, N.Y. These two white males appeared to the surveillance agents to be swarthy looking and possibly of Italian extraction. Also in the club at the time of their arrival was SAM CASTALDI, [REDACTED] LCN member. CASTALDI has been interviewed and advised he saw no one in the club which has two rooms, except [REDACTED] and CASTALDI claimed that there is a stinking odor of dogs in the club making it difficult for CASTALDI to stay inside the club.

It appeared to the surveillance agents that the two white males who arrived in the gold Plymouth had been waiting in the park across from the club for GALLO to arrive and enter before they went into the club, possibly indicating that the two are unknown to patrons of the club except GALLO.

On Wednesday, 5/23/73, the writer and SA [REDACTED] met with Special Attorney [REDACTED] of the Organized Crime Strike Force, SDNY, and [REDACTED] SOS, NYCPD. At the meeting, participants discussed prosecutive approach to JOSEPH N. GALLO. [REDACTED] advised GALLO could then be subpoenaed before a Grand Jury, granted immunity and questioned regarding his association with various LCN figures. [REDACTED] stated that he felt GALLO would refuse to answer or perjure himself and could then be prosecuted.

It was also decided to further pursue GALLO's association and participation in the loan shark ring of [REDACTED] and [REDACTED] advised that he felt calling the victims as well as some of the participants in this ring before the Grand Jury was a worthwhile course of action. He stated he felt that it was essential that Agents again interview [REDACTED] concerning GALLO's association with [REDACTED] and [REDACTED].

[REDACTED] advised that he felt a surveillance would also be productive and expressed a willingness to participate.
